Michelle One

On Sunday, President Obama flew back to the United States on Air Force One. His wife, two daughters and her mother stayed on in Paris to do a bit of shopping in Paris before taking their own Boeing 757 (C-32) over to London to do some sightseeing.

We all remember Obama's admonishment to corporate CEOs in February:

"You can't buy or use corporate jets, you can't go take a trip to Las Vegas or go to Super Bowl on the taxpayers dime."

Apparently that doesn't apply to the Queen of Washington.

The London Times opened its description of Michelle's visit this way:

"Motorcycle outriders, armoured Chevrolets and bullet-headed men in raincoats crossed London yesterday as Michelle Obama and her daughters spent a second day on an unofficial visit to the capital."

The Times went on to describe that when Michelle and the girls arrived at Westminster Abbey, the building was closed to tourists with people already in the queue waiting against the wall. An American visiting the Abbey said "Right then I knew it was probably someone from our royal family".

Michelle's motorcade shut down the London street above as the First Lady of the World and her children go for Fish and Chips at a pub in Mayfair. The entourage inside the restaurant was 15 people while dozens more wait outside. Include the dozens of Air Force personnel to fly and service the plane, embassy personnel and other staff and we are talking about a serious expenditure of tax payer dollars.

Meanwhile, millions of Americans have lost their jobs and won't be able to take their family on a summer holiday. Despite their circumstances they'll still be expected to fork over the tax dollars to pay for Michelle's trip! KEEP IN MIND, we have another 3 1/2 years of this.

Absolutely incredible!
