

The 210-Year Old Economic Booby Trap That's About to Snare Almost Everyone

(including you - unless you make this bold financial move today)

An International Grand Chess Master and an Ex-IMF Economist have just unearthed what may be remembered as: "The Holy Grail of Crisis Economics." It's a financial tipping point that over 40 countries are rapidly approaching today. The last time this happened on such a scale was in 1932. Though most investments got leveled back then, one stock went up 55,000%...

Get ready for the third and final act of the global financial crisis...

Dear Reader,

By John Pugsley
Chairman
The Sovereign Society

There's a secret number buried in the private books of governments the globe over...

It's a key economic figure that almost every government on the planet would prefer to keep to itself.

And for centuries they pretty much have.

But an international grand chess master and an Ex-IMF economist have just unearthed it.

Unsatisfied with the financial fossil record, these economists went on a grand expedition in financial archaeology.

Their quest took them everywhere from Maui to Indonesia...Argentina to Greece...

They dug up the financial records of 66 countries dating back to 1800. They explored data from the now defunct League of Nations. Plus they dug up papers and reports from decades of scholars and many government agencies.

And what they excavated was a financial secret that has been hidden for centuries.

This secret, they soon found out, was the true cause behind almost every major country crisis the global economy has experienced in the past 210 years – yet it has been strangely absent from the vast volumes of economic literature and financial analysis.

Considering the relevance that this key figure has in gauging the economic health of a country, they were shocked that the data was rarely available from any public source. Not from the IMF. Not from the World Bank. Not from the UN. And rarely even from the country itself. No wonder generations of economists have missed it. And no wonder barely a single economist alive today picked up on it.

Yet the significance of it cannot be understated. And the implications it has on how the global financial crisis will play out are shocking, to say the least.

At the very least, you can expect Nobel Prizes for the economists who uncovered it. But it will be a bittersweet reward because you can also expect...

Poverty on a scale never before seen...widespread social unrest...industries breaking apart...once revered financial systems pushed to the brink of extinction... currencies and even entire countries collapsing...

Rob Parenteau, a chief U.S. economist is predicting it will be:

“The Story of Our Time”

Arab News is calling it: “The Ultimate Risk.”

And the Financial Times says get ready for “the Second Great Depression.”

But suffice it to say, Bernanke, the Fed, the governments of the world, and the media establishment have led you to believe that “This Time is Different...That all the Fed fiddling, and all the Fed’s Men CAN put the global economy back together again.”

But empirical evidence spanning 66 countries over 208 years would say otherwise...

Dear reader, we have been here before.

In this special report, I’ll tell you about this shocking find in the economic archeological record...I’ll tell you what it means to the global financial crisis today, and more importantly what it means to your future...

But there’s no reason to get crushed by it...

In this special report, you’ll learn about:

- How the Third and Final Act of the Global Financial Crisis is About to Play Out. Almost every great banking crisis in the past 210 years has usually been followed by yet another crisis, one Bernanke and the Media have neglected to mention. But pay homage to history, and even while mainstream investments get vaporized, you can be invested in the same kind of stocks and industries that went up as much as 55,000% the last time this scenario played out.
- The Sovereign Black List. Over 40 emerging markets today are implementing stimulus packages that mirror efforts being made in the advanced nations in order to jumpstart their own economies. They are rapidly accumulating massive external AND internal debts, and are about to default...

- Where NOT to Have Your Money Over the Next Five Years.
- 3 of the Biggest Beneficiaries of Obama's New "New Deal." During the last Great Depression, 3 companies profited greatly from government-sponsored programs, which were designed to rebuild the world and get the economy back online. $1,000 invested into each of them in 1932 would've been worth $765,000 by 1952. The same trend is underway today. And we'll tell you who we think "The Next Big 3" will be...
- How to Trade Like a Financial God in the World's Hottest New Asset Class. The coming events will turn this alternative asset class (hands down) into the biggest and most wildly profitable market in the world. We'll show you how to play it like the big boys. You don't need a huge portfolio. You don't need special trading accounts. And if you follow the big trends, it's much easier and safer to play than the stock market. It's a whole new trading game...

Turning Crisis into Opportunity for 12 Years Now

My name is John Pugsley. I am the Chairman of a private group of international free-thinkers called the Sovereign Society.

We are advised by an unmatched team of investment experts and analysts from around the globe...from London to Zurich...Montreal to New York...Hong Kong to Panama City...Copenhagen to the Isle of Man. Collectively we boast over 400 years of experience.

Our advisors include top geopolitical forecasters, Swiss and Danish bankers, New York Times best-selling authors, international money managers, asset protection attorneys, tax specialists, privacy gurus, retirement experts, and currency and commodity traders.

We were also one of the first financial research groups to warn investors of the dangers in the derivatives market...and in a report mailed as far back as June 2004, we set out almost to a T exactly how today's global financial crisis would unfold...

And in the summer of 2008 when everyone on Wall Street was telling investors that the worst was over, we sent out updated versions of this report impelling investors not to buy into their rhetoric...that the worst wasn't over...and that banks like Lehman Brothers, Citigroup, Bank of America, Wachovia and Merrill Lynch were all about to fall...

So far, we've been eerily accurate when most other Wall Street gurus and titans were dead wrong. What's more through all this mayhem, not only have we helped our members' to protect their own capital, but we have helped steer them towards alternative investments that are way off the Wall Street radar, and which leapt 2, 3, 11 even as much as 18 times when almost everything else crashed.

And we've done it by standing in stark contrast to the Wall Street norm. We don't sit around waiting with baited breaths for quarterly earnings reports. We don't bob up and down with the markets. We don't follow fads or buy into market manias or "trendy" investments. Yet we're not boring or conservative either. We just do things differently.

Shunning "Wall Street's New Culture of Risk"

While Wall Street plays the markets one way, we play it another. We don't buy into the "irrational exuberance" that so often grips the Street. We shun their "New Culture of Risk." In fact, we look to banks and investments far away from Wall Street's scandal-plagued casinos.

The nations we investigate and report on are not drowning in a sea of debt. Strong financial institutions, traditions and practices are still thriving in the top Money Havens where our members choose to invest. What's more, you can access powerful financial products there that can open you up to a whole new world of booming investment opportunities...

And thanks to the Internet and the telecommunications revolution, you can access them just as easily as clicking your mouse. But by not following the Wall Street herd, by doing things differently, for over a decade now, our members have managed to turn great crises into great profits...through the Tech Wreck, 9/11, the crash of the once Almighty dollar, the accounting scandals of 2002, the bear market of 2002-2003, today's credit crisis we have seen gains of 1794%... 678%... 797%... 501%...94%...37%...and more...

Now you can too. In fact, we believe that opportunities to make even two, ten, even fifty times these amounts might be just round the corner...

I'll tell you about them in a moment, but first let me tell you about the shocking new evidence that an International Grand Chess Master and an Ex-IMF economist have recently dug up... and the devastating implications it could have for the global economy (and for your portfolio) today...

Uncovering "The Holy Grail of Crisis Economics"

Carmen Reinhart and Kenneth Rogoff, two maverick economists have thrown hot coffee in the face of generations of financiers, bankers, analysts, Wall Street titans and political powwows...

Even after writing dozens of books on financial crises, and correctly forecasting the Mexican crisis, the Asian Contagion, Argentina's default and the sub-prime mortgage meltdown, they still suspected that there were missing links in our understanding behind the real causes of a country crisis.

Discontented with the financial fossil records, they went on a hunt to dig up new evidence that would give us deeper insight into past financial crises, but more importantly evidence that would help us understand today's current one, and its evolution.

First of all, they discovered that over the last 208 years, 41 countries defaulted a total of 199 times on their external debt (i.e. the debt they owed to foreigners).

And they noted a number of events that led to this default.

The first event was a Market Boom.

A massive influx of capital gushed into the country (not unlike we've seen in many emerging markets this decade.) This influx pumped up the profits of local businesses and banks alike, which led to a borrowing binge that supported a great economic expansion.

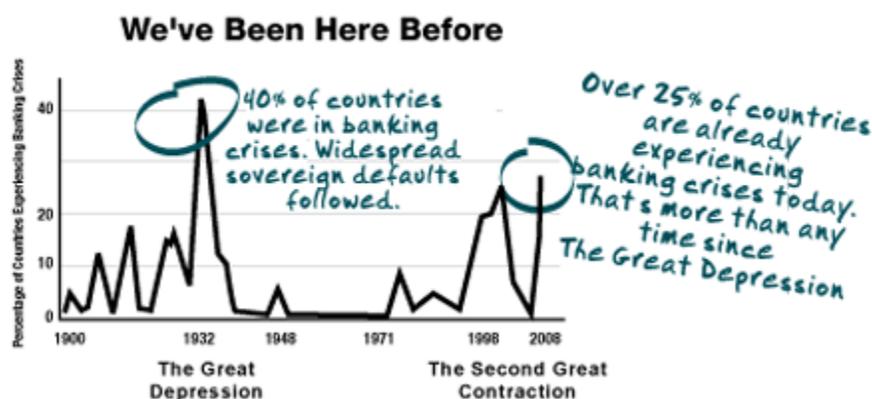

But the expansion was one based on debt, not on real economic fundamentals, and was proven to be unsustainable.

This then led to the crisis.

And each crisis came in 3 Acts.

They were:

- Act 1: Corporate Crisis. Public companies expanded too fast, and could no longer make the minimum payments on their debts, leading to a wave of corporate defaults.
- Act 2: Banking Crisis. The banks incurred heavy investment losses, and a significant portion of the country's banking sector became insolvent. The governments then made the fatal mistake of bailing them out. What they, in effect, did was bail out Zombie banks, which weren't healthy enough to make new loans or get the economy growing again. This put huge financial pressure on the government. It was the Japanese Syndrome repeated again and again. (And tragically we are falling into the same trap today. The world is speaking Japanese. We just don't know it.)
- Act 3: Country Crisis. Government debts began a big 5-year run up. On average they rose 86% in the first 3 years. (Unfortunately, from our studies, we have learned that over 40 countries are approaching this stage today, and look set to be on the verge of default. That's more than at any time since the Great Depression).

Their Next Discovery: 69.3% The Secret Number that Brings Economies to Their Knees!

A Debt-to-GNP ratio is the amount of money a nation owes to foreigners in comparison to the value of everything all its citizens produced in that year.

Reinhart and Rogoff discovered that on average countries tend to default when their Debt-to-GNP levels climb to around 69.3%.

But what has mystified and eluded economists for generations is the fact that many emerging markets have chosen to default at much lower levels of Debt-to-GNP ratios.

Developed countries can default, and DO admittedly default, at much higher levels, largely because they try to print their way out of debt.

Although the latest Debt-to-GNP figures have yet to be released to the public, we can still get a good idea of what they might be by merely looking at a nation's Debt-to-GDP ratio.

For example:

- America's Debt-to-GDP today is 99%.
- The UK's is 80%.
- And Japan's is even higher at a staggering 223%.

These admittedly are wartime-like Debt-to-GDP levels.

We've never seen these levels before in peace times.

They are dangerously high.

And what in effect these countries are doing (ours included) are actually silently defaulting on their debts. (Of course, this scheme can only work for a time. And as you'll see - that time may soon be up.)

Emerging markets, on the other hand, don't have the luxury of doing this, largely because foreigners aren't likely to lend to them (or rarely anyone else for that fact) in an emerging market currency.

For example, foreigners (like you and I) aren't likely to lend Argentinean pesos to the Argentinean government (in fears that Argentina will merely pay us back by simply printing more pesos). We assume that the desire for an emerging market government to act like a kleptomaniac is just too great to resist. Thus we will only agree to lend to Argentina in say dollars, yen or euros or another currency we might choose to trust.

But why do countries choose to default at levels much lower than the average 69.3%?

That's the question that's stumped thousands of top economists for generations...

The Secret Debt Bombs at the Heart of Every Country Crisis

After studying 199 country defaults over 208 years, Rogoff and Reinhart finally found the answer...

They unearthed a critical figure that had been hidden for centuries in the historical records. This figure was the country's domestic debt figure. This was not the money that the emerging market government owed to foreigners. It was the money they owed to their own citizens.

For generations economists assumed that no citizen of an emerging market would voluntarily lend money to its own kleptomaniac government in its own currency. After all the government, in order to pay back its own citizens, could merely just let the printing presses roll. It could easily in effect just silently default on its obligations, by inflating the debt down to nothing.

So the logical explanation was that domestic currency public debt must not exist.

But it does. And it has for centuries.

And the even more shocking thing that Rogoff and Reinhart discovered was that not only were emerging markets harboring such debt on their books, the amount that they were harboring was usually equal to (and sometimes more than) the debt they owed to foreigners.

What that means is that their Debt-to-GNP levels were actually around double what the official figures were. It means that when Argentina shocked the world and defaulted on its debt in 2001 at only 50% of GNP, it was really harboring a Debt-to-GNP level around 100%.

The same was true of Mexico when it defaulted on its debt in 1982 at only 53% of GNP, and in 1994 at only 35%. The real figure was about double that.

What's more, these maverick economists conducted a standard battery of tests on each country's default, and their findings were confirmed right across the board.

The frightening thing for the global economy today is that we face the same debt problem – but on a scale not seen since the Great Depression...

The Sovereign Black List

Many emerging markets today are implementing stimulus packages that mirror efforts being made in the advanced nations in order to jumpstart their economies. They are rapidly accumulating massive external AND internal debts.

Already over 40 countries in the world today look set to default.

Ecuador already defaulted in 2008. Dubai defaulted last year. But we believe this is only a glimpse of what's to come. Right now Eastern Europe, a bunch of countries in the Middle East, even countries like Greece, Italy, and mega-economies like Japan, UK and the U.S. look set to default.

While the latter 3 will probably print their way out of the problem, causing massive inflationary pressures, and in effect silently defaulting, the others may begin to default outright.

And while the IMF might have some success bailing out the first few countries that default, it will soon become a systemic problem, as one default begets another, with serious spillover effects.

The IMF already has plans to quadruple its resources, but it still won't be enough. The Bail-

The Sovereign Black List (Over 40 Countries are Dangerously Dancing on the Cusp of Default)

Country	Debt to GDP Ratio
Japan	223.4%
United States	99.3%
Italy	116.7%
United Kingdom	80.3%
Israel	80.1%
Belgium	101.2%
Iceland	147.1%
Ireland	82.9%

While most large nations like the United States, U.K., and Japan are in effect silently defaulting by simply printing their way out of debt, dozens of other struggling emerging markets will default outright. Based on the historical average, a country will default at a Debt-to-GNP ratio of 69.3%. But emerging markets often default at rates lower than this, due to their large domestic debt

Out Pot needed this time is just too big. The giant Ponzi scheme of “Debt as Money” will finally come crashing to the ground in one last great cataclysmic splat.

The twisted and dark world of debt, and its effects, will come quickly (and violently) to light.

We are as close to a 1930’s style depression as we have ever been. It may not be as bad. And it may not last as long. After all, we do know more now. But it is foolish for us to think that “This Time Will be Different.”

In the 5 years before a country defaults, the government usually begins to rack up an enormous debt. On average government debt rises 86% in the first 3 years. Over 40 countries are approaching this stage now and look set to default. That's more than at any time since 1932.

55,000% on the #1 Depression-Proof Stock

All kinds of investments got slaughtered during the Great Depression. An investment in the DOW in 1932 would've netted you zero return over the next 20 years. Everything from retailers to automakers...chemical companies to banks went nowhere.

But not all was doom and gloom.

In fact, the Great Depression was a time when those who knew what they were doing made enormous economic strides, and the very nature of the depression worked in their favor. While most companies were cutting back on everything from staff to marketing, a few companies ramped up advertising budgets and production, and leapfrogged light-years ahead of their competitors...

They either watched their competitors go bankrupt or they swallowed them up whole, and added them to their growing Empire.

And even though conventional wisdom says that in a depression necessities like food and drugs soar over wants like cigarettes and flashy cars, that is not always the case. Cash-rich corporate kings who applied aggressive marketing strategies back then, like Procter and Gamble, Camel Cigarettes and Skelly Oil (now Chevron/Texaco) flew through the Great Depression, and became ever more dominant while their competitors got wiped out.

But even beyond the "Procter and Gambles", the one investment trend that ruled over almost all others was the big boom in infrastructure stocks.

In fact, one of these stocks, General Dynamics soared 55,000% from 1932 – 1952!

3 of the Best-Performing Stocks of the Era

Back then, just like now, a large chunk of stimulus dollars was earmarked for new infrastructure projects.

Part of Roosevelt's "New Deal" was the Works Progress Administration (WPA). This program employed 8.5 million people. These people went to work on constructing bridges, highways, dams, parks, power plants, pipelines, railroads, refineries etc.

Obama's New "New Deal" will no doubt end up being no different. Only it will need to be bigger, grander, and employ even more people. When things start to unravel, Obama will be forced to create another WPA. We already have around 10% unemployment in America, and if you include the people who are unskilled or who've given up looking for a job, that figure is closer to around 19%.

Paul Krugman, the Nobel-Prize winning economist, as well as a band of other political and economic influentials are already pushing for a new WPA.

But it won't be the only one in the world. China. India. Brazil. Russia. The UK. Japan. Germany. Finland. And dozens of other countries across the planet will be employing similar programs. In fact, many of them have already begun.

These programs will be designed to get people back to work, and to get the economy back online. And they will be sponsored by big fat government grants. Follow this money trail (just as others did in the Great Depression) and you'll end the era ten - maybe even a hundred times richer than your neighbor...

For example, the big infrastructure plays of the last Great Depression were General Dynamics, Granby Consolidated and Bethlehem Steel.

And while the DOW went nowhere, these stocks soared 55,000%... 13,483%... and 7,722% respectively.

That means $1,000 invested in each of them in 1932 was worth $765,000 by 1952. Not a bad return considering it was the worst 20-year period in economic history.

$3,000 into $765,000 on These 3 Stocks

Company	1932	1952
General Dynamics	$1,000	$551,000
Granby Consolidated	$1,000	$135,830
Bethlehem Steel Corp.	$1,000	$78,220

Total:	$3,000	$765,000

Who Will Win the $41 Trillion Prize to Build our New World?

As you well know, the globe is long overdue for an upgrade!

Railroads. Highways. Airports. Seaports. Power grids. Pipelines. Wastewater treatment facilities. Oil and gas refineries. Alternative energy production facilities. They all need either building or at the very least mending.

Plus with populations still exploding, and with strong cash-rich emerging mega-markets still on the rise, this infrastructure must be laid in order for economies like China, India and Brazil to continue their massive industrial expansion.

Some estimates say that over the next 20 years it will take a staggering $41 trillion to build and rebuild the world – a figure almost equal to the current market capitalization of all shares held in all markets across the globe.

According to a report from Morgan Stanley in the next decade:

- China alone will spend $9.3 trillion on infrastructure.
- India will spend $2.8 trillion.
- Russia will spend $2.2 trillion.
- Brazil will spend $1.1 trillion.
- The Middle East, spilling over with oil profits, will spend $868 billion.
- And the U.S. in the next few years will be forced to join the race in order to play catch-up, as the developing world becomes state-of-the-art.

It'll be a Global Building Boom on a scale the world has never before seen: A feat to impress the Pharaoh's.

And a large chunk of the trillions of global stimulus dollars has been earmarked for these infrastructure projects...

A Faultless Track Record of Success Through Crisis After Crisis

Triple-Digit Gains on Gold through The Great Tech Wreck! When the Street was going mad buying up dotcoms with insane valuations, and everyone was dropping old economy stocks and real assets for fly-by-night Internet stocks, we were recommending gold and gold stocks. By betting on gold, real assets, and alternative offshore funds we flew through the Great Tech Wreck. Over the next decade we made 22 gold recommendations. All but two raked in for us double and triple-digit gains. And we're not done yet. In fact, when you sign up for your trial membership to the Sovereign Society you'll learn why we believe gold will still be one of the greatest investments going forward, and you'll learn about our latest top gold recommendations.

Big Profits as the Offshore Financial Revolution Erupted. Sovereign Society offers one of the only ways for mainstream investors to gain easy access to a whole range of offshore financial opportunities. Many of our advisors are actually natives of some of the world's greatest and safest European, Asian, and offshore money havens. And through their reach and influence they have been able to introduce our members to benefits and privileges that simply aren't available at home, including access to tax-advantaged funds and investments, private offshore bank accounts, asset protection devices and many other powerful financial devices and products (which for generations were reserved only for the super rich).

678% on the Great Resource Race... As we said, we were one of the first financial research groups to see the coming boom in things like gold and natural resources. It's how we managed to help our members see double and triple-digit gains on literally dozens of natural resource investments over the past decade. For example, we've gone as high as 210% on Barrick Gold, 94% on palladium, 151% on ENI SpA, 678% on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, 284% on Valero puts, 191% on Goldcorp, 188% on Merrill Lynch International Gold Fund, 122% on Newmont Mining, 185% on Gold calls, 139% on Vestas Wind Systems, 88% on PrimeWest Energy Trust, 142% on Bonavista Energy Trust...just to name a few.

99% on the Rise of the East... Long before it became fashionable on Wall Street to start diversifying out of the lagging U.S. stock markets and into the booming new emerging markets of the East, Sovereign Society's council of international experts were recommending ultra-safe, yet ground-breaking investments in Eastern Europe, China, India, Brazil, Middle East etc including little-known funds and stocks that even today you'd rarely find on the pages of the Wall Street Journal. We've seen gains as high as 74% on India's Tata Motors, 22% on Hungarian Government Bonds, 40% on Pall Corporation, 69% on China's Mengniu Dairy, 99% on the Korea Fund, 50% on iShares MSCI Turkey ETF, 65% on Cheung Kong Holdings, 81% on iShares Xinhua China 25 Index Fund, 70% on the Singapore Capital Mall Trust, 18% on the Arab Gateway Fund, 31% on Chinese bonds...

797% and 1794% on Dollar's First Big Crash. In 2002 we made staggering gains of 1794% and 797% - with minimal risk - by betting against the U.S. dollar. By anticipating the negative effects war and other economic disasters would have on the dollar...we decided to "rent" a number of hard currencies for far less than their real values. It basically allowed us to buy $21,312 of Euros at only $1250. The $1250 was all we had to risk - to give us the "right" to buy a large amount of Euros by a certain date in the future. Because the Euro appreciated greatly against the dollar we exercised our right and bought $21,312 worth of Euros. We turned $1250 into $21,312 in just a few months and made a staggering 1794%. We did the same again with Swiss francs and made a further 797%. Many more of these explosive profit opportunities will arise as countries start to default. You'll learn all about them when you sign up to become a member of the Sovereign Society.

The New Super-Growth Industry

The biggest winners – by far - will be the mega-infrastructure companies that will win the bids to upgrade and retrofit the planet for our new energy future.

You see new technologies are always another one of the most important key drivers required to spin economies out of recessions/depressions. In the 1930's we had the radio revolution. In the inflationary '70s we had the computer revolution. And after the S&L debacle of the '80s we had the Internet revolution.

Today, we'll have the alternative energy revolution.

More private and public money will go into creating alternative energies, including the infrastructure to get them online, than will have ever been spent on any other initiative before.

Already a significant percentage of many country's stimulus programs has been allocated for alternative energies and green technologies. China alone has dedicated 38% of its current stimulus dollars to it. South Korea has dedicated a staggering 81%, the EU: 59% and the US: 12%, just to name a few.

But while alternative energy companies in everything from solar to wind...next generation bio-fuels to liquefied natural gas...clean coal to wave stand to win big from these initiatives, many will still go by the wayside, as the competition will be fierce.

What's more alternative energy technologies are still in their infancy. And it's difficult to gauge who the big winners will be at this early stage.

However, the construction and engineering companies that the alternative energy industry will rely on to build their factories, plants, generators, storage devices, transmission lines, pipelines, ports and ships are far fewer, and are therefore much easier to pick.

What's more, governments the globe over will be giving out stimulus dollars hand over fist to these big players who will retrofit our planet for our new energy future...

Follow the money trail, and you can't go wrong...

“The Next Big 3”

Let me introduce you to our #1 pick for the new era ahead.

It's one of the world's biggest builders. It's been around for 98 years. And it is likely to be around for another century and beyond...

This company built the world's first major oil refineries. In the '40s it began moving into natural gas plants. In the '50s it was one of the biggest nuclear power plant builders. In the '60s it diversified into offshore drilling and mining. It even built America's famous energy artery – the Alaska pipeline.

Today you'll find this company's creations on all 6 continents...

It designs and builds many of the world's most complex and challenging structures.

And in addition to all that, it has become one of the leading builders of the infrastructure for a broad variety of alternative energy sources, including solar, wind, biomass, geothermal, coal-to-gas, coal-to-liquids and liquid natural gas.

In short no company is better positioned to take on the ambitious goal of retrofitting our planet for our new energy future.

The company already gets much of its revenues from government spending. And with trillions of stimulus dollars earmarked across the world for alternative energy projects this trend will only accelerate, just as it did during the last depression, catapulting engineering giants like itself to the very top of the investment heap.

Fortune Magazine* has repeatedly ranked this company #1 in its engineering and construction category on its annual survey of America's Most Admired Companies.

Add its impeccable balance sheet with no debt, tons of cash, soaring revenues and profits, a dividend yield of 1%, a PE of 12, plus its extraordinary growth potential, and I'm sure you'll agree that this outstanding company is grossly undervalued.

We'll tell you all about it (and another 2 of our top infrastructure plays) in a FREE investment alert that we'll rush you when you sign up for a risk-free trial membership to the Sovereign Society. Make 1,471% in 6 Months Betting Against These Currencies On the Edge

It's no secret the dollar's days as the world reserve currency are numbered.

And you need to start diversifying out of the dollar immediately in order to protect your wealth.

A number of Middle Eastern nations are already planning – along with China, Russia, Japan and France – to end dollar dealings for oil. They will instead move to a basket of currencies including the Japanese yen and Chinese yuan, the euro, gold and a new, unified currency planned for nations in the Gulf Co-operation Council, including Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi, Kuwait and Qatar.

This means nations will no longer have to hold dollars to buy their oil. While this plan won't happen immediately, the committee has adopted a deadline to end dollar domination by 2018.

This event will truly crack the foundations of the dollar's once almighty power.

Plus due to America's own soaring deficits, a Debt-to-GNP level already approaching 100%, unfunded Social Security and Medicare programs, there's really only one way for the dollar to go long-term – and that's down. It might enjoy brief booms, but that'll be it. So you really need to start diversifying now.

And it's not just the dollar that's headed for a fall. The yen, the pound and other hard currencies are also under enormous pressure...

Even worse off are the currencies of the struggling emerging markets that are on the verge of default. Once these countries start to default, one magnificent trend will follow...

That trend will be an inflationary one, resulting in the debasement of these currencies.

In fact, we've never properly understood why a country experiences high inflation on the run up toward a default. But we do now. It's largely because the government is busily covertly printing off lots of extra cash to try and pay off the debt they owe to their own citizens. This eventually pumps a lot of excess liquidity into the economy, which pushes up prices, and devalues the currency - sometimes leading to its eventual collapse.

It's why a bet against the Argentinean peso in 2001, the Mexican peso in 1994, just before their defaults made shrewd currency traders profits of as much as 1,471% in as little as 6 months.

But we never truly understood this before.

Now we can capitalize on it for the time in history.

And scores of these opportunities are opening up right now.

Kleptomaniac governments the globe over are covertly printing off currency to pay off the debt they owe to their own citizens. Mexico's doing it. Iceland's doing it. Argentina's doing it. Hungary's doing it. And dozens more. Each one can provide you with a timely opportunity to cash in big quadruple-digit gains in just months.

There's never been a better time to play the currency markets!

Trading Like the Financial Gods in the World's Hottest New Asset Class

In the past, admittedly it was difficult for the average American to invest and profit off foreign currencies. But fortunately a number of great trading revolutions have occurred in the global currency markets in just the past few years.

In just the last 12 months alone we've seen the launch of dozens of new currency ETFs, new currency funds, new interest-bearing FDIC-insured multi-currency CDs and other exotic types of foreign currency investments that were simply not available to the average American investor before.

All these new products belong to the $4 trillion a day foreign exchange market, simply known as the FOREX market. But this is not the FOREX market you hear about on CNN. Nor is it the high-risk, high-rolling FOREX futures casino where Wall Street's top guns use massive leverage to shoot for big-time profits.

On the contrary this is a completely new market that is currently transforming the global currency game.

For the first time, it is allowing mainstream investors to take advantage of easy-to-spot currency moves that could make you as much as 1355%... 1471% 340%... 800% in as little as one week to five years.

We call these trades "squeeze plays."

Squeeze plays come at moments in history when sentiment shifts...when the crowd realizes it got it wrong – and investors all pile out of a stock, a sector, a market, a currency all at once – selling in a frenzy...like when investors dumped tulips in 1637... railroad shares in 1873... stocks in 1929... bonds in 1981...Mexican pesos in 1994... tech stocks in 2000...Turkish lira in 2003...real estate trusts in 2006... banking stocks in 2008...

These dates marked the end of some of history's most "irrational" manias...

Every year hundreds of buying frenzies are quickly followed by selling frenzies – steep climbs followed by vertical descents.

For those who pinpoint the timing of these frenzies, and identify the set-ups that are leading to these volatile moments before they happen, by betting against them you can realize a decade's gains in just months.

Quadruple-Digit Gains in 6 Months Flat as a Wave of Currencies Crash

In the past 15 years, savvy investors who watched countries like Mexico, Argentina and Turkey start to crumble made profits of as much as 838%, 1471% and 1355% in as little as 6 months - just by betting against these country's currencies.

Now dozens of these opportunities are opening up...more than at any time since 1932. The difference today though is, anyone with just a few thousand dollars can profit from these trends.

It is allowing you to trade alongside the Soros's and Buffett's of the world – and to tap into the very same opportunities that have made them the world's richest men.

It's a whole new trading game.

You'll learn all about it as a Member of the Sovereign Society.

In fact sign up for 2 years and we'll send you 2 FREE currency trading alerts to help you capitalize on the best of these opportunities right now.

It will give you a chance to protect your assets from the decline of the dollar, and help you rake in safe solid gains from the long-term appreciation of super-currencies like the Chinese yuan and the Brazilian real.

For over a decade now, Sovereign Society has been suggesting alternative investments in things like gold and foreign currencies in order to gain protection from the demise of the dollar. And by doing this we've helped our members preserve the purchasing power of their money, when millions of Americans have watched their dollars and their investments take repeated hits.

In the global arena, America legacies are now worth pennies on their '90's dollars.

We Are as Close to a 1930's Style Depression as We Have Ever Been

It may not be as bad. And it may not last as long. As I said, we do know more now. But it is foolish for us to think that "This Time Will be Different."

210 years of financial folly says otherwise.

And while the IMF might have some success bailing out the first few countries that default, it will soon become a systemic problem, as one default begets another, with serious spillover effects.

The IMF already has plans to quadruple its resources, but it won't be enough. The Bail-Out Pot needed this time is just too big. The giant Ponzi scheme of "Debt as Money" will finally come crashing to the ground.

But there's no reason you have to stand by and wait for the shock waves to hit...

Join the Sovereign Society today. And we will help you get through this inevitable third and final act of the global financial crisis.

In fact, by making bold financial moves today...by switching to alternative investments like currencies, foreign bonds, gold, and depression-proof stocks that are hardwired to benefit from the tough times ahead – you can end the era ten, twenty – even a hundred times richer.

Make those moves today.

PS Over 40 emerging markets today are implementing stimulus packages that mirror efforts being made in the advanced nations in order to jumpstart their own economies. They are rapidly accumulating massive external AND internal debts. But most economists can only see half the problem. They don't realize that lurking beneath the official figures is a debt bomb twice the size. And one that is about to push these economies (and their currencies) over the edge...delivering one last final blow to the global economic system. But as we've set out in this report, it doesn't mean you have to join the bread lines. Be on the right side of these events, and you can be hardwired into stocks and industries that went up as much as 55,000% the last time this scenario played out.
